The medical services job market is in excellent health and growing ever more robust. A population that is living longer will drive an increased need for medical care and the medical administrators who manage the system.

At Monroe, we have a health administration faculty who is as diverse as the field itself. Our faculty has included a CEO of a major medical facility as well as a geriatric social worker with over two decades of experience. These dedicated professors will help equip you to work more effectively by immersing you in the operations of health care and in specific skills, such as medical coding and billing.

Major healthcare providers, including Jacobi Medical Center, the Bronx Veterans Hospital, New York Presbyterian Hospital, and Montefiore Medical Center, have hired our graduates.
