

MASTER OF ARTS IN TEACHING

Childhood Urban Education / Special Education for Teachers

About the Program

Passionate educators seeking to expand their impact will find an unparalleled opportunity in the Childhood Urban Education/Special Education program. This 33-credit Master of Arts in Teaching program offers dual certification tailored for teaching young learners in high-needs urban schools within the New York City Department of Education, as well as charter schools and private schools throughout the State.

Through rigorous academic study paired with immersive clinical fieldwork, the program provides the real-world skills and knowledge base to make a difference for today's students. Teachers complete certifications in both childhood education (grades 1-6) and special education (grades 1-6) over the course of 15 transformative months.

The program, aligned with NYSED's Culturally Responsive-Sustaining Education Framework, is designed around the developmental needs of elementary children in urban environments, with a focus on serving all learners including those who are culturally and linguistically diverse and those with disabilities. Expert faculty guide teachers in best practices for inclusion and individualized instruction. Flexible full-time and part-time options allow working educators to complete coursework in hybrid and fully online models.

For teachers passionate about shaping future generations, this MAT offers unmatched preparation and credentials tailored for schools with the highest needs. Graduates will have the skills and certifications to advance their careers improving outcomes for young learner and will be poised to continue their education should they choose in the future.
