

ASSOCIATE DEGREE IN ENTERTAINMENT MEDIA

At Monroe University, our state-of-the-art television studio is your classroom.

The entertainment industry is one of the world's fastest-growing creative economies, offering career opportunities across film, television, streaming, sports media, music, digital content, live events, journalism, and more. An Entertainment Media degree prepares students to become versatile storytellers, producers, creators, and media professionals who can thrive in an ever-changing industry.

At Monroe University, students learn by doing. From their first semester, they gain hands-on experience producing professional-quality content, collaborating on real-world productions, and working alongside industry professionals. Students graduate with the technicai expertise, creative confidence, and the professional experience employers seek.

ENTERTAINMENT MEDIA FACULTY

Our program leadership is driven by the expertise of renowned Emmy nominated and award-winning reality television showrunners, Professor Dorothy Toran and Professor Jacob Huddleston.

Entertainment Media students have opportunities to engage with leading organizations and industry professionals, including:

+ ESPN
+ New York Mets
+ Turn 2 Foundation
+ Film and television production companies
+ Broadcast and digital media networks
+ Public relations and marketing agencies
+ Sports and entertainment brands
+ Independent filmmakers and production studios
+ Podcast and streaming media platforms
+ Fashion and lifestyle media brands

MONROE UNIVERSITY

Questions? Contact us at 646.574.0945
Dorothy Toran, Executive Director of Entertainment Media / dtoran@monroeu.edu